A: HOMERIC EPIC

Epic (Greek ἐπικός (epikos), ἔπος (epos) "word, story, poem")

The archaic literal form to use poetic and mythical means to conceptualize the nature or origin of cosmos and humanity.

古文学形式，用诗歌和神话的方式来构思宇宙和人类的本质或起源。

Homer

Homer: the unknown[1]

Modern scholars appear to place Homer in the 7th or 8th centuries BC

The author of the Iliad and the Odyssey

- The debate on authorship: single or multiple?
- The debate on literacy: illiterate or not?[2]
- "transcription solution": from non-literate to a literate scribe
- The debate on blindness: blind or not? (hómēros means "blind")

The Oral Tradition

- the Homeric poems are dependent on an oral tradition, which was the collective inheritance of many singer-poets[3]
- literacy: ability to read, write & think with printed materials
- orality: ability to remember with sound and express ideas verbally
- the poems contain many formulaic phrases typical of extempore epic traditions; even entire verses are at times repeated[4]
- e.g. Athena is "owl-eyed"
- Homer as a teller of legends and myths[5]
- Legends: No abstract ideas, but happenings and occurrences such as wars[6]
- Medieval manuscripts[7]

[1] "Homer was a man's name, not the Greek equivalent of 'Anonymous', and that is the one certain fact about him. Who he was, where he lived, when he composed, these are questions we cannot answer with assurance, any more than could the Greek themselves." (Finley, 1979: 15)

[2] "…there is considerable debate about whether the large-scale design and complex structure exhibited by both the Iliad and the Odyssey could have been produced without the aid of writing." (Murnaghan: 2007, xxiii)

[3] "Heroic poetry is oral poetry; it is composed orally, often by bards who are illiterate, and it is recited in a chant to a listening audience." (Finley, 1979: 29); "In 1934, at the request of Milman Parry, a sixty-year-old Serbian bard who could neither read nor write recited for him a poem of the length of the Odyssey, making it up as he went along, yet retaining metre and form and building a complicated narrative."(Finley, 1979: 29-30)

[4] "Specifically, these poems manifest a use of repeated elements—phrases, lines, groups of lines, and types of episodes—that are an essential feature of an oral poet's style. Because a poet who performs orally does not memorize and recite an unchanging artifact but composes his song as he goes at the same rate at which he delivers it, he relies on a supply of stock elements; acquiring that supply is a key aspect of his training." (Murnaghan: 2007, xxi-xxii)

[5] "Homer occupies the first stage in the history of Greek control over its myths; his poems are often pre-Greek, as it were, in their treatment of myth, but they also have flashes of something else, of a genius for ordering the world, for bringing man and nature, men and the gods, into harmony in a way that succeeding centuries were to expand and elevate to the glory of Hellenism." (Finley, 1979: 25)

[6] "The essential subject-matter of legend was action, not ideas, creeds or symbolic representations, but happenings, occurrences – wars, floods, adventures by land, sea and air, family quarrels, births, marriages, and deaths."(Finley, 1979: 22)

[7] "What we read…is a text laboriously collated from medieval manuscripts, usually from the 12th to the 15th centuries of our era, the end-product of an unknown number of recopyings" (Finley, 1979: 20)

B:THE STORY OF ODYSSEY

Odyssey: story of Odysseus.

One of two major ancient Greek epic poems attributed to Homer, composed near the end of the 8th century BC.

A sequel to the Iliad (伊利亞特), focusing on the story of the hero Odysseus'（奧德修斯）homecoming after the fall of Troy（特洛伊）. [8]

Intellectually more challenging and influential than the former.

It takes Odysseus ten years to reach Ithaca after the ten-year Trojan War.

In his absence, it is assumed he has died, and his wife Penelope and son Telemachus must deal with a group of unruly suitors who compete for Penelope's hand in marriage.

Structure

Books	Summary
1-4	Telemachus ventures out to sea in search of his father Odysseus; mother Penelope at home to keep suitors away
5	Odysseus leaves Calypso, the immortal nymph
6-8	Odysseus reaches Alcinous's kingdom, wins Nausicaa and her parents' help, and wins respect for his eloquence and excellence in sports
9-12	Odysseus' tale: Cyclops, Circe, the Dead, Scylla and Charybdis
13-14	Odysseus reaches Ithaca and gathers news from the swineherd
15-16	Telemachus returns and meets his father
17-18	Odysseus, disguised as a beggar, meets the suitors
19	Penelope receives the beggar-guest
20-22	Odysseus plots to kill the suitors and does it with Telemachus
23	Odysseus passes Penelope's test
24	Odysseus meets his father and makes peace with survivors of the suitors and Charybdis

C: MESSAGES FROM ODYSSEIUS' STORY

1) The Standard Reading

An epical and finally "comedic" story of journey, choice, homecoming, friendship, kinship, growth, faith, and love, and, above all, transformation of self.

Important messages:

(1) Odysseus and his family's success is to a great part due to his personal strength and nobility.

(2) The journey back home is equally or even more dangerous than the journey of setting out.

(3) Journey of life is harsh and tenuous, and only through tenuous way like this, one can transform, or transcend, her/himself into a new person.

(4) Odysseus and Telemachus' personal and human choices are made under highly constrained and contingent contexts, with many adverse and uncertain factors in the background, e.g. suitors, Poseidon, etc.

2) A Skeptic Reading in light of Greek Tragic Culture

[8] "…it gives that story a distinctive emphasis through its focus on Odysseus, who is presented as the hero best suited to the arduous task of homecoming and the one whose return is both the most difficult and protracted and the most joyful and glorious." (Murnaghan: 2007, ix)

A critical question: What if before you start your vital adventure and you know that you, unlike Odysseus, are doomed to fail?

The Classical Greek Tragedy (Tragedy of Fate 命運悲劇): King Oedipus(俄狄浦斯), Prometheus(普羅米修斯), Laocoon（拉奧孔） …

A paradoxical question: What if you go for a vital adventure, and, despite you finally succeed, the success renders your original intention meaningless?

Example: A contemporary epic tragedy: Michael Radford - Addicted to the Stars

Nietzsche's Insights into Greek Tragedy

They Classical Greeks knew that life IS meaningless and nihilistic, that life is a tragedy by nature. But they know well how to deal with this: Precisely because life is meaningless, one need to have the Will to contrive something meaningful and live the real life splendidly, and at the end, accept the tragic end with great composure. And this is truly humanistic life.

In this sense, the Greek wisdom behind tragedy is a matured, classical affirmation of life, while the epic attitude seems to be more archaic and naive.

Nietzsche The Birth of Tragedy:

Be a tragical man, for you will be redeemed!" "If life is doomed as a dream, weave the dream vividly; if life is a tragedy, perform it seriously. " "The human life is tragic, it always ends in death which can never be avoided[...] but he understands that there are moments and things worth living (and dying) for". (Nietzsche 1999).

A Modern Expression of the Tragic Attitude:

"God, give me the serenity to accept things which cannot be changed; Give me courage to change things which must be changed; And the wisdom to distinguish one from the other."

by Niebuhr Reinhold , or Martin Luther King?

3) A Charitable Reflection

Is Odyssey really that naïve? Is the epic attitude really anti-tragic? In what sense is it naïve, if at all?

Is it possible to read it as an equally (or MORE!) matured wisdom in which the possible tragic nature of life is indeed appreciated but the man deliberately choose to stick to a naive idealism and optimism?

Hubert Dreyfus (UC Berkely):

Odyssey is great, because of its Greek Neivete(唯其單純，所以偉大).

Steve Jobs:

Stay hungry. Stay foolish(求索不止，大智若愚)

3. Questions within the Text

1) In the West, “Odyssey” is synonymous with “journey”, “voyage” and “adventure”, but, curiously, our textbook selection has skipped the portion of his adventure story, and focuses instead on the “homecoming” theme. Do you think the editor of the textbook do justice to Homer?
2) One of the major themes of Odyssey is the growing, maturing, or self-transforming of Telemachus. How would you characterize Telemachus’ personality before and after he is transformed? Find textual evidence to support your characterization.
3) In “Book 19”, there is a long, interesting and somehow ambiguous conversation between Odysseus and Penelope. Some scholars of Odyssey say that during that conversation, Penelope already “knows” that the beggar is his husband. Do you agree with them? Do you think the answer to whether Penelope knows the identity of the guest is important? Justify your answers.
4) Read “Book 5 : 215-220”. Do you think Odysseus’ expression sincere? How can we understand his motivation of giving up a fairy lady and go back home for a secular one?

4. Questions beyond the Text

Besides the profound ideas one can learn from it, a great literary work is expected to deeply touch and move the audience. Honestly speaking, do you think that Odyssey deeply touches you? If yes, share with your authentic reading experience with others. If not, analyze the reasons.

A) Suggested Reading

The whole text is suggested.

B) Plato and Plato's Socrates

Plato (柏拉圖，427-347 BC) , Greek idealist and mysticist philosopher and mathematician, arguably the most influential figure in the Western intellectual world.

Alfred N. Whitehead: "the safest general characterization of the European philosophical tradition is that it consists of a series of footnotes to Plato."[1]

Central to Plato's comprehensive philosophy is the Doctrine of *Eidos ("Idea", "Form", 理念，形式，相), articulated in the Republic and other dialogues, which asserts, very roughly:

1) Non-material and archetypical eidoses possess the highest and most fundamental kind of reality;
2) Individual and perceptible objects, on the contrary, are merely illusive and perishable copies of the universal and absolute eidoses;
3) The proper pursuit of knowledge is to transcend from the perceptible and empirical world to the world of eidoses, which is the world of truth, goodness, and beauty per se.

A possible attack against the Platonic Idealism: an Nominalist Fallacy (唯名論謬誤) --To ontologize and substantiate the nominal and formal attributes of objects, and take the attributes themselves as existing entities, as "something" real, independent, and superb.

Plato wrote 36 dialogues (Stephanus pagination (e.g. "515a")), respected as the paradigmatic combination of literature and philosophy.

In most of which, he took his mentor, Socrates, as the dominant speaker, but it is controversial to what extent Plato had portrayed Socrates' ideas faithfully.

Socrates (蘇格拉底, 469BC-399BC), the ideal example of intellectual personality in the western culture, a combination of intellectual excellence with practical virtue.

Plato's records of the noble intellectual life of Socrates as the "gadfly of Athens"[2]: Apology, Crito, Symposium etc.

"The Socratic Mottos" (蘇氏人生箴言): 1) Know yourself; 2) I know I am ignorant; 3) Virtue is knowledge.

C) Love and "Platonic Love"

Symposium(<會飲篇>，"drinking (posis) together (syn)") is a philosophical dialogue written by Plato at his middle career.[3]

The topic of the discussion of the Symposium is the nature of love, or more precisely, the nature of "erotic love"—in the modern sense, romantic love.

Eros: a god of love in ancient Greece, his Roman counterpart being Cupid; son of Aphrodite (Roman Venus), blind, armed with a bow and arrows.[4]

[1] Whitehead A. N., (1978), Process and Reality, New York: The Free Press, p39.

[2] "I was attached to this city – though it seems a ridiculous thing to say–as upon a great and noble horse which was somewhat sluggish because of its size and needed to be stirred up by a kind of gadfly. It is to fulfill some such function that I believe the god has placed me in the city." (Apology, 30E).

[3] "The Symposium (Ancient Greek: Συμπόσιον) is a philosophical text by Plato dated c. 385–380 BC. It concerns itself at one level with the genesis, purpose and nature of love, and (in later day interpretations) is the origin of the concept of Platonic love."in Wikipedia "Symposium (Plato)": http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Symposium_%28Plato%29

[4] "Eros acquired the familiar arrows at the time of Euripides, in the fifth century B.C. With the acquisition of the bow and arrow, he became the god of falling in love. He does little else than shoot his arrows at random into the hearts of men and women."(Bergmann (1987), 33; my

Four words for “love” in the Greek language: Philia (love in general, friendship, mental love, eg. Aristotelian friendship[5]), Agape (spiritual love, later Christian Love[6]), Eros (physical love, romantic love), Storge (natural affection) .

The Symposium is one of the theoretic sources of the much quoted but misleading idiom, “Platonic Love” (柏拉圖式的愛), the other one being the dialogue of the Phaedrus.

Question: what is “Platonic love” in general?

D) The “Socratic Method”

The dialogue is structured as a drama, in which each of several speakers delivers a speech on the nature of love (in the form of a tribute to the god of Eros) from various perspectives.

Structure of the Dialogue:

Participants	Pages	Characters
Phaedrus	178a-180c	an idealist, whose approach here is literary
Pausanias	180c-185e	a realist; Agathon’s lover
Eryximachus	186a-189c	a doctor
Aristophanes	189c-193e	a writer of comedies
Agathon	195a-199c	a writer of tragedies
Socrates	201d-212c	a philosopher who repeats speech by Diotima
Alcibiades	214e-223a	a politician as well as a playboy who loves Socrates

Socrates’ tribute, placed nearly in the end, is meant by the author as the keynote speech, which states Plato’s own conception of love in response to others’ opinions.

Such a peculiar structured is devised to embody the enormously influential “Socratic Method”.

In the narrow sense, the Socratic Method is a manner of inquiry and discussion between individuals, based on asking and answering questions to stimulate critical thinking and to illuminate ideas. It is a dialectical method(辯證法), often involving a discussion in which the defense of one point of view is questioned; one participant may lead another to contradict himself in some way, thus strengthening the inquirer's own point or clarifying the knowledge of the questioned.[7]

In the broad sense, the Socratic Method embodies an intellectual attitude (智性態度), i.e. the skeptic and critical attitude. To advocate this attitude, as Socrates did, is because our habitual and planted opinions are usually biased or even inconsistent after careful examination.

[Illustration: An in-class Practice of “Socratic Method”]

E) The doctrine of “Ladders of Love” emphasis).

---

[5] To be read and discussed in Nichomachean Ethics.

[6] “Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It does not dishonor others, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres. Love never fails.” (1 Corinthians 13:4-8)

[7] Theaetetus (150 b-c): “My art of midwifery is in general like theirs [real midwives]; the only difference is that my patients are men, not women, and my concern is not with the body but with the soul that is in travail of birth. And the highest point of my art is the power to prove by every test whether the offspring of a young man's thought is a false phantom or instinct with life and truth. I am so far like the midwife that I cannot myself give birth to wisdom, and the common reproach is true, that, though I question others, I can myself bring nothing to light because there is no wisdom in me. The reason is this. Heaven (Jowett: "the god") constrains me to serve as a midwife, but has debarred me from giving birth. So of myself I have no sort of wisdom, nor has any discovery ever been born to me as the child of my soul. Those who frequent my company at first appear, some of them, quite unintelligent, but, as we go further with our discussions, all who are favored by heaven make progress at a rate that seems surprising to others as well as to themselves, although it is clear that they have never learned anything from me. The many admirable truths they bring to birth have been discovered by themselves from within. But the delivery is heaven's work and mine.”

Plato's central idea on love, ultimately an application of his theory of eidos to the topic of love, can be conveniently summarized by the metaphor from Diotima (a witch quoted by Socrates) , namely Ladders of Love.

Love, in essence, is the embodiment of the desire of human beings (who are mortal and finite) to achieve immortality. In other words, human beings do not love for the sake of love, but take love as a means for higher purposes.

A lover in the process of pursuit of immortality will progress from rung to rung from the basest love to the pure form of love (A beautiful body; All beautiful bodies; Beautiful souls; Beauty of social orders; Beauty of knowledge; Beauty itself.)

F) Contemporary Voices

1) A Modern Echo of the Platonic Ladder: The Freudian theory of Sublimation (弗洛伊德"昇華"論)

Sublimation is a process that diverts the flow of instinctual energy from its immediate sexual aim and subordinates it to cultural endeavors. The greatest achievements in civilization were due to the effective sublimation of our sexual and aggressive urges that are sourced in the Id and then channeled by the Ego as directed by the Super ego.[8]

2) Evolutionist Criticism

Evolutionists are not so interested in the topic of love. If they do, probably they would take love as a survival strategy of homo sapien, not something of philosophical significance. (See Dawkins's skeptic view in the video talk).

Tutorial Questions

1) Phaedrus says in [178c-d]: "Love, more than anything (more than family, or position, or wealth), implants in men the thing which must be their guide if they are to live a good life." What does he mean by this, that is, what is his reason that love makes people better?

2) Pausanias says in [183 d]:"So love is neither right nor wrong in itself." In what situation, then, is love a wrong thing, and in what situation a good thing for him? Is his idea similar to Socrates? If yes, in what way?

3) Do you think Aristophanes' presentation of love in [189d-192d] reasonable at all? Thinking from the author namely Plato's perspective, what is the use of such a romantic and primitive presentation of the essence of love in the dialogue?

4) Revisit the main ideas of Agathon [196a-197d], and Socrates' interrogation of him [199 d-201d]. What is the major difference between their general understanding of love and its relation with the important moral virtues?

5) How does Alcibiades [215b-223d] contribute to the main theme of the whole dialogue?

I Warming Up with the Text

1. Pronunciations

Plato ['pleɪtoʊ]; Socrates ['sɒkrətiːz] ; Pausanias [pɔː'seɪniəs] ; Aristophanes [ærɪ'stɒfəniːz]; Alcibiades [ælsɪ'baɪ.ədiːz]; Agathon ['ægəθɒn]; Aphrodite [æfrə'daɪtiː] Achilles [ə'kɪliːz]

2 A Problematic Translation

[196b-d] "Now I must say something about his goodness. […]Moreover, he is a paragon of virtue as well as justice. After all, virtue is agreed to be control of pleasures and desires.[…] So much for the god's justice, virtue and courage. Now for his wisdom."

"Goodness" here is the translation of "arête", which is usually translated into "virtue" or "excellence in character"(美德，優秀品質).

"Virtue" here is the translation of "Sophrosune", which is usually translated into "temperance" or "moderation" (節制), not so much into "virtue".

So-called "Four Cardinal virtues (arête)"(四主德) in ancient Greek and Christian culture： sophia ("wisdom", "prudence",智慧), dike(justice， harmony 正義， 公義), andreia (fortitude, courage, 英勇，堅強)， and Sophrosune .

3. Multiple Choice

1.Which of the following forms of beauty may NOT literarily be included in Socrates' theory of lovers as ladders?
a) Beauty of knowledge b) Beauty of human institutes c) Beauty of art d) Beauty by itself

2. In whose speech Eros is enthusiastically praised in terms of lovers' bravery in fighting the war.
a) Aristophanes ； b) Phaedrus ； c) Eryximachus ； d) Alcibiades

3 According to Diotima of Socrates, which of the following descriptions is proper for Eros?
a) He is a God; b) He is good; c) He is ugly; d) He lacks all the above qualities.

4. According to Agathon, Eros is a god with various kinds of "goodness". Which of the following "goodness" is not included in his praise?
a) Justice; b) Courage; c) Piety; d) Wisdom

II. Text Construction

Individual Presentation: Choose a character in the following list. Prepare a first-person narrative presentation in 2-3 minutes.
Aristophanes (189c-193e) Agathon (195a-199c) Pausanias (180c-189c) Socrates(199c-215a) Alcibiades (215b-223d)

III. Methodological Exercise

Revisit the lecture note on the Socratic Method, and think about the following questions:
1) Which portion of Symposium can be read as a best illustration of the Method in the narrow sense?
2) Is the whole dialogue of the text orientated toward a Socratic method in general? What are the dialectic relations between Socrates' speech with others' respectively?

IV. Questions within the Text

Group Discussion: work with one partner, and make a quick, five-minute research and discussion on one of the following questions. Share your discussed ideas with the fellows in the class.

1). Eryximachus says in [177 d]: "I propose that each of us in turn, going round anticlockwise, should make a speech the best he can, in praise of Eros." Why do the dialogists take a general intellectual enquiry of the nature of love in the form of praise of the God of Eros? Do you think this way of thinking charitable?
2). Socrates says in [177 d-e]: "… Love is the only thing I ever claim to know anything about. " Why is Socrates, the person who claims he knows nothing ([216d], "you know how hopelessly ignorant and uncertain he is"), is so confident about the topic of love? Think about the question in light of his preliminary discussions with Diotima in [201d-204d].
3). Phaedrus says in [178c-d]: "Love, more than anything (more than family, or position, or wealth), implants in men the thing which must be their guide if they are to live a good life." What does he mean by this, that is, what is his reason that love makes people better?
4). Pausanias says in [183 d]:"So love is neither right nor wrong in itself." In what situation, then, is love a wrong thing, and in what situation a good thing for him? Is his idea similar to Socrates? If yes, in what way?
5). Do you think Aristophanes' presentation of love in [189d-192d] reasonable at all? Thinking from the author namely Plato's perspective, what is the use of such a romantic and primitive presentation of the essence of love in the dialogue?
6). Revisit the main ideas of Agathon [196a-197d], and Socrates' interrogation of him [199 d-201d]. What is the major difference between their general understanding of love and its relation with the important moral virtues?
7). Think about Alcibiades' speech [215b-222c]. Do you think it is merely meant as an accidental interlude in the drinking party, or something closely related to the main idea of the whole work?

V. Debate

Russell vs. Plato on Love

The modern philosopher, Bertrand Russell, famously writes in the "Preface" of his Autobiography (Routledge, 2000):

"Three passions, simple but overwhelmingly strong, have governed my life: the longing for love, the search for knowledge, and unbearable pity for the suffering of mankind. These passions, like great winds, have blown me hither and thither, in a wayward course, over a deep ocean of anguish, reaching to the very verge of despair. […]I have sought love, first, because it brings ecstasy - ecstasy so great that I would often have sacrificed all the rest of life for a few hours of this joy. I have sought it, next, because it relieves loneliness - that terrible loneliness in which one shivering consciousness looks over the rim of the world into the cold unfathomable lifeless abyss. I have sought it finally, because in the union of love I have seen, in a mystic miniature, the prefiguring vision of the heaven that saints and poets have imagined".

What is the essential difference between the Platonic and Russellian loves?

ARISTOTLE VS. PLATO

"Aristotle (384–322 B.C.E.) numbers among the greatest philosophers of all time. Judged solely in terms of his philosophical influence, only Plato is his peer".[1]

Plato – Idealist: Two worlds--the world of eidos and the world of experience; Lay more theoretic emphasis on the world of eidos, thus such peculiar ideas as "Ladder of Love"

Aristotle—Realist: Lay more emphasis on the world of experience; With respect to ethical matters, no transcendent entities, thus no transcendent "ladder".

Aristotle against Plato:

"[…]it is a puzzle to know what the weaver or carpenter will gain for his own craft from knowing this Good itself, or how anyone will be better at medicine or generalship from having gazed on the Idea itself."

"For what the doctor appears to consider is not even health, but human health, and presumably the health of this human being even more, since he treats one particular patient at a time." (EN 1097a9-14)

B) THE WORK OF ETHIKA NIKOMACHEIA

Titled after the name of Aristotle's youngest son Nicomachus; standardly cited with the Bekker Number.[2]

One of the most classical pieces of ethics (倫理學), namely philosophical study of moral issues; the singularly important work of the discipline of virtue ethics.

Three general approaches in Normative Ethics: 1) Virtue Ethics(美德論 eg. Aristotle)emphasizes the role of one's character and the virtues that one's character embodies for determining or evaluating ethical behavior; 2) Deontology (道義論 eg. Kant) emphasizes duty to rules, insisting a behavior can be good or evil by its own nature; 3) Consequentialism (後果論 eg. Mill) holds that the outcome of one's conduct is the ultimate basis for any judgment about the rightness or wrongness of that conduct.

Nicomachean Ethics is structured in accordance of the study of virtues under the general topic of pursuit of good life.

Book I: Happiness as the final good; Book II-IV: Virtue of character; Book V: Virtue of justice; Book VI: Virtue of thought; Book VII: Pleasure; Book VIII-IX: Friendship; Book X: Pleasure again.(Books indicated in bold fonts are selected in the textbook).

A) KEY IDEAS AND ARGUMENTS

The general question: How should one live a good life?

Aristotle in the work tries to provide an account of moral practice (praxis) as well as moral theory (theoria). e.g. doctor and patient. [3]

Praxis: correspond to practical activity, to which the end goal is action;

Theoria: correspond to theoretical knowledge, to which the end goal is truth.

Sub-question (1): What is the nature of activities in human life?

[2] "Bekker numbers take the format of up to four digits, a letter for column 'a' or 'b', then the line number. For example, the beginning of Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics is 1094a1, which corresponds to page 1094 of Bekker's edition of the Greek text of Aristotle's works, first column, line 1." For details, see http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Corpus_Aristotelicum#Bekker_numbers

[3]"[…] most people do not perform these actions but take refuge in theory, thinking that they are being philosophers and will become good in this way. They behave a bit like patients who listen carefully to their doctors, but do none of the things they were told to do." (EN 1105b13-16)

Means 手段 vs. Purpose 目的

Teleological nature (目的性): In general, human beings engage in purposive behaviors. We do things for reasons and act with ends in view. We desire something good.[4]

What Aristotle mean is:(1) Sometimes we make things (such as a chair), and sometimes we simply do things (like dancing).(2) Some of the things we do, we do for their own sake (listening to music, for instance).(3) Sometimes, we do something, or make something, for the sake of something else that we want (we read books in order to learn about Aristotle; we attend the classes in order, at least partially, to secure our academic grades).

Thus, there are instrumental (external) goods, which are good for the sake of something else, and intrinsic goods, which are good in itself.

目足的

Instrumental goods: e.g. GPA, wealth;[5]

Intrinsic goods: e.g. pleasure; happiness.

Sub-question (2): What is the final good, namely good in itself?

A possible candidate: Pleasure (hedone,快乐，愉快), or happiness in the sense of subjective feeling.[6]

But Aristotle rejects it in harsh-sounding language.[7] Pleasure is a subjective conception of happiness: If he feels happy, then he is happy, and otherwise not; and one's pleased subject matter does not necessarily makes another pleased.

The issue is that we want not merely feeling good, but also doing something good. We want something really occurs.

Eudaimonia (Well-being, 幸福) as an objective conception of happiness. Aristotle is committed to an objective account of happiness. What is really good for human beings is determined by what human beings are by nature.

The nature of human beings is revealed by reflecting on the teleological structure in terms of the human function (ergon-work, task, 功能).

幸福是内在的卓越

Sub-question (3): What is the function of human beings*?*

使人的心智能力得到最终解放

Functional Argument (FA): a good human being is a human being who performs the human function to its excellence in accordance with virtue (arête: virtue, excellence, 德行，优秀 [8]), e.g. flautist/sculptor. [9]

The proper function of life: nutrition and growth (plants);sensation (animals); reason(human beings).[10]

FA can be shown in a clearer way:

Premise (1): The function of any given kind x is determined by isolating x's characteristic activity.

Premise (2): The characteristic activity of human beings is reasoning.

Conclusion: The function of human beings is reasoning.

Premise (3): The function of human beings is reasoning.

Premise (4): Exercising a function is an activity of the soul.

Conclusion: Exercising the human function is an activity of the soul in accordance with reason.

[4]"Every art and every investigation, and similarly every action and pursuit, is considered to aim at some good. Hence, the good has been rightly defined as 'that at which all things aim'." (*EN*1094a1-3)

[5] "[…] wealth is obviously not the good of which we are seeking, because it serves only as a means; i.e. for getting something else." (EN 1096a7-8)

[6]"After all, pleasure is a good thing, and it is chosen for its own sake and not for the sake of anythingbeyond itself. What is more, it is widely regarded as the best thing in life, as that which we in fact seek above all else." (Christopher, 2007: 314).

[7]"The many, the most vulgar, would seem to conceive the good and happiness as pleasure, and hence they also like the life of gratification. In this they appear completely slavish, since the life they decide on is a life for grazing animals."(EN 1095b15-20)

[8] In classic Greek, "arete", translated into "virtue" in modern English, literally means "excellence", in particular excellence in realizing a potential.

[9]"This might perhaps be achieved by grasping what is the function (érgon) of man. If we take a flautist or a sculptor or any artist–or in general any class of men who have a specific function or activity–his goodness and proficiency are considered to lie in the performance of the function; and the same will be true of man, assuming that man has a function." (EN 1097b24-28)

[10]"Clearly life is a thing shared also by plants, and we are looking for man's proper function; so we must exclude from our definition the life that consists in nutrition and growth. Next in order would be a sort of sentient life; but this too we see is shared by horses and cattles and animals of all kinds. There remains, then, a practical part of the rational part." (EN 1097b34-1098a4)

FA implies that:

(1) Human happiness is an activity rather than a passive state; happiness is a doing rather than a being.

(2) The conditions of happiness are objectively given. We do not choose our nature or function.

Sub-question (4): How should we live together?

Friendship (philia) is divided into three kinds, and only the kind based on goodness is perfect.(1156a7-1157b5)

Friends are necessary for happiness. The man of perfect happiness as a solitary is a paradox. *(1169b3-1170b18)*

Friendship is actualized by spending lives together. (1171b29-1172a14)

2) Aristotle believes that the best life is the life of contemplation [1095b], that is, life devoted to theoria and the purely practice of the intellectual function. Although our selection does not cover his articulation of this life [Book X]. But can you anticipate what would be his major justification for this thesis? Think about the question in terms his conception of human function.
3) Aristotle says that spending time together is important for friendship (1171b31). How important is "spending lives together" for friendship? What is the main difference between Aristotelian and Facebook "friends"? Does modern technology make people more friendly, or more hostile?
4) Do you agree with Aristotle's idea that we should make friends with "good" guys? How do you make judgment as the goodness of your friends?

ANALECTS: HUMANENESS & PROPRIETY

GFH1000 In Dialogue with Humanity
Deng Yangzhou | 2015-16 1st | dengyangzhou@cuhk.edu.cn

A: THE BOOK OF THE ANALECTS

Literally, "Analects" means "ordered sayings". The book of the Analects consists of recordings of core ethical aphorisms from the Master Confucius (or Kongzi, 551-479 BC) and his disciples. [1]

Caution should be made that although the whole book is stylistically dialogical, in essence Confucius is almost all the time the dogmatic speaker, and is seldom challenged.

(EN, 1096a16): Though we love both the truth and our friends, reverence is due to the truth first.

(Analects, 9.11): Yan Yuan, in admiration of the Master's doctrines, sighed and said, "I looked up to them, and they seemed to become more high; I tried to penetrate them, and they seemed to become more firm; I looked at them before me, and suddenly they seemed to be behind. The Master, by orderly method, skillfully leads men on. He enlarged my mind with learning, and taught me the restraints of propriety. When I wish to give over the study of his doctrines, I cannot do so, and having exerted all my ability, there seems something to stand right up before me; but though I wish to follow and lay hold of it, I really find no way to do so."

A concise work, yet with its rich insights into human nature, the Analects has since become the singularly important ethical work in the Pan-Chinese culture circle.

B: THE MORAL MOTIVATION

In the Nicomachean Ethics, Aristotle argues that a good and happy human life ought to:
(1) transcend animal and low desire and pleasure (EN, 1095b15-20);
(2) take internal excellence as the ultimate pursuit (1095b-1096a);

《論語》：仁愛與禮教

GFH1000 與人文對話 |鄧揚舟|2015 年 5 月

甲《論語》其書

「論」字有「整理」、「編撰」之意；「語」字則有「論難」、「答述」之意；按照字面直譯，「論語」就是經過整理編撰的答疑錄、語錄、嘉言錄。[3]

嚴格而言，《論語》一書，體例雖屬問答，其宗旨乃是記述孔子訓誡，鮮有質疑對話，其治學态度，與希臘式哲學對話殊為不同。

亞里士多德（EN, 1096a16）「吾愛吾師，吾更愛真理。」

《論語》(9.11) 顏淵喟然歎曰：「仰之彌高，鑽之彌堅；瞻之在前，忽焉在後。夫子循循然善誘人，博我以文，約我以禮。欲罷不能，既竭吾才，如有所立卓爾。雖欲從之，末由也已。」

《論語》辭約義富，惠澤深遠，在儒家傳統中乃是「群經之首」，文化地位無可匹敵。

乙 道德主体

《尼格馬可倫理學》中，亞里士多德申論，好的人生，乃應：
(1) 超越動物性低級欲求（1095b15-20）；
(2) 勿為外物如聲望及財富所羈

[1] The Latinized name "Confucius" is derived from "Kong Fuzi" (Master Kong), and was first coined by 16th-century Jesuit missionaries to China, most probably by Matteo Ricci.
[3] 班固，《漢書·藝文志》：《論語》者，孔子應答弟子、時人及弟子相與言，而接聞於夫子之語也。當時弟子各有所記，夫子既卒，門人相與輯而論纂，故謂之「論語」。
劉熙，《釋名·釋典藝》：「論，倫也，有倫理也。語，敘也，敘己所欲說也。」

(3) cultivate the unique human function, namely rationality, and live in accordance with virtues prescribed by it (1098a).

Confucius in the Analects also attaches great importance to (1) and (2), emphasizing the necessity of moral subjectivity, though in regard to (3), he does not take rationality in general as the essential capacity to cultivate in the making of an exemplary moral person, called by him "Junzi" (Gentleman, Superior Man). [2] Instead, a fine-grained moral sentiment in the form of Ren (benevolence, humaneness, love), acquirable from education and enlightenment, is the quality he advocates.

(1) The Human-animal Distinction

Confucius believes the human world should not be ruled by natural desires, but rather by ethical orders based on moral sentiments. A society can be bettered with efforts, and it should be the moral vocation of man to strive for an ideal world hic et nunc. It is not necessary to put one's hope onto any heavenly kingdom.

(2.7) Zi You asked what filial piety was. The Master said, "The filial piety nowadays means the support of one's parents. But dogs and horses likewise are able to do something in the way of support; - without reverence, what is there to distinguish the one support given from the other?"

(18．6) Chang Zu and Jie Ni were at work in the field together, when Confucius passed by them, and sent Zi Lu to inquire for the ford. Chang Zu said, "Who is he that holds the reins in the carriage there?" Zi Lu told him, "It is Kong Qiu.', "Is it not Kong Qiu of Lu?" asked he. "Yes," was the reply, to which the other rejoined, "He knows the ford." Zi Lu then inquired of Jie Ni, who said to him, "Who are you, sir?" He answered, "I am Zhong You." "Are you not the disciple of Kong Qiu of Lu?" asked the other. "I am," replied he, and then Jie Ni said to him, "Disorder, like a swelling flood, spreads over the whole empire, and who is he that will change its state for you? Rather than follow one who merely withdraws from this one and that one, had you not better follow those who have withdrawn from the world altogether?" With this he fell to covering up the seed, and proceeded with his work, without stopping. Zi Lu went and reported their remarks, when the Master observed with a sigh, "It is impossible to associate with birds and beasts, as if they were the same with us. If I associate not with these people - with mankind - with whom shall I associate? If right principles prevailed through the empire, there would be no use for me to change its state."

（1095b-1096a）；
(3) 重視對人之為人的理性潛力的培育（1098a），錘練終身，臻於至善（1094a15-20）。

《論語》中孔子亦異常重視 (1)及(2)兩點，重視人之道德主体性的建立，唯孔子認為，就（3）而言，人之為人最重要的因素乃是道德情感即仁愛之心，非一般意義上的理性。[4] 而塑造理想的人格，即所謂「君子」，亦在於對這種道德情感之教化與習得。

（1）人禽之辨

孔子認為人倫世界有別於只有自然情欲的動物世界。人倫的世界是可變的、可救的（縱使相當困難），理想的終極寄託在此世。所謂「理想世界」，其實就是當下世界之變得美好，而非他世、彼岸或天國。

（2.7）子曰：「今之孝者，是謂能養。至於犬馬，皆能有養；不敬，何以別乎？」

（18．6） 長沮、桀溺耦而耕，孔子過之，使子路問津焉。長沮曰：「夫執輿者為誰？」子路曰：「為孔丘。」曰：「是魯孔丘與？」曰：「是也。」曰：「是知津矣。」問於桀溺，桀溺曰：「子為誰？」曰：「為仲由。」曰：「是魯孔丘之徒與？」對曰：「然。」曰：「滔滔者天下皆是也，而誰以易之？且而與其從辟人之士也，豈若從辟世之士哉？」耰而不輟。子路行以告。夫子憮然曰：「鳥獸不可與同群，吾非斯人之徒與而誰與？天下有道，丘不與易也。」

[2] "Junzi" literally means "prince".

[4] 「在全部人生中，中國儒學思想，則更著重此心之『情感』部份，尤勝於其著重『理知』的部份。……『情』失其正，則流而為『欲』。中國儒家，極重視『情』『欲』之分辨。人生應以『情』為主，但不能以『欲』為主。儒家論人生，主張節欲寡欲以至於無欲。但絕不許人寡情，絕情乃至於無情。」(錢穆，2000：290-291)

"仁" ↔ "命"
"人品好，牌品自然好"

（2）The Fate-Duty Distinction

Material successes in a secular world are constrained by accidental and external conditions, and such conditions are called by Confucius as "Ming" (fate, ordinances). An enlightened man should know better of the existence of these conditions, and be aware that external and material benefits, if securable at all, are not the final good in human life. Having known the nature of finitude and contingency of human life, one ought to strive to cultivate his/her intrinsic potential, and make the ethical character as ideal as possible, and this is his/her moral duty and imperative.

(9.1) The Master seldom spoke on profits; instead, he appeals to fate and perfect virtue.

(20.3) The Master said, "Without recognizing the ordinances, it is impossible to be a superior man."

(4.16) The Master said, "The mind of the superior man is conversant with righteousness; the mind of the mean man is conversant with gain."

(4.5) The Master said, "Riches and honors are what men desire. If it cannot be obtained in the proper way, they should not be held. Poverty and meanness are what men dislike. If it cannot be avoided in the proper way, they should not be avoided. If a superior man abandon virtue, how can he fulfill the requirements of that name? The superior man does not, even for the space of a single meal, act contrary to virtue. In moments of haste, he cleaves to it. In seasons of danger, he cleaves to it."

(3) The Superior Man as the Prince

Similar to Plato, Confucius holds an anti-machiavellian attitude toward the role of Prince in a society. He believes it is the mission of each of the elite member to cultivate himself into a moral person with refined behavioral manners.

(6.27) The Master said, "The superior man, extensively studying all learning, and keeping himself under the restraint of the rules of propriety, may thus likewise not overstep what is right."

(6.16) The Master said, "Where the solid qualities are in excess of accomplishments, we have rusticity; where the accomplishments are in excess of the solid qualities, we have the manners of a clerk. When the accomplishments

（2）義命分立

人生、事功的成就有賴各種外在條件，不以個人意志決定，是謂「命」；人生之道，不應在於追求外在條件的成功，即所謂「利」，而應在於砥礪教化，以期成就完滿的人格，這是為人之本責及道義，是所謂「義」。

(9.1) 子罕言利，與命與仁。

(20.3)「不知命，無以為君子也。」

(4.16) 「君子喻於義，小人喻於利。」

(4.5) 子曰：「富與貴是人之所欲也；不以其道得之，不處也。貧與賤是人之所惡也；不以其道得之，不去也。君子去仁，惡乎成名？君子無終食之間違仁，造次必於是，顛沛必於是。」

（3）內聖外王 [5]

完滿人生與社會可期，然而君子應以理想秩序為己任，首先從我做起，自我修養及教化，不惟博文約禮，更要道德完善，內外兼修，文質彬彬。

(6.27)「君子博學於文，約之以禮，亦可以弗畔矣夫。」

(6.18)「質勝文則野，文勝質則史。文質彬彬，然後君子。」

[5] 「內聖外王」一詞本出自《莊子.天下》，唯後世學者多習慣藉其概述儒家理想。

and solid qualities are equally blended, we then have the man of virtue."

C：CENTRAL IDEAS: REN (Humaneness) AND LI (Propriety)

"Ren", the core concept of Confucianism, usually translated as "Humaneness", "Benevolence", "Virtue", "Perfect Virtue", etc. Confucianism is sometimes called "Doctrine of Ren", due to the centrality of this concept in the whole system.

In the broad sense, "Ren" is amount to "virtue" in general. For Confucius, this is the primary humane quality of an educated man.
In this broad sense, all other specific virtues, such as Xiao (Filial Piety) and Di (Fraternal Submission), are but various expressions of Ren within a specific domain.

(3.3) The Master said, "If a man be without the virtues proper to humanity, what has he to do with the rites of propriety? If a man be without the virtues proper to humanity, what has he to do with music?"

In the narrow sense, Ren specifically means benevolence, the disposition to treat other humans with care and love.

(12.22) Fan Chi asked about Ren (benevolence). The Master said, "It is to love all men."

(1) The Root of Ren

Where in human nature does the moral sentiment of Ren spring from? Confucius and his fellows ascribe it to the most natural human feeling, namely, the consanguine affection. In particular, he lays stress on the fundamental role of Xiao (filial piety) and Di (fraternal piety).

(1.2) They are few who, being filial and fraternal, are fond of offending against their superiors. There have been none, who, not liking to offend against their superiors, have been fond of stirring up confusion. The superior man bends his attention to what is radical. That being established, all practical courses naturally grow up. Filial piety and fraternal submission! - are they not the root of all benevolent actions?

(1.6) A youth, when at home, should be filial, and, abroad, respectful to his elders. He should be earnest and truthful. He should overflow in love to all, and cultivate the friendship of the good.

丙 仁禮之道

「仁」，字面意思：「人之為人」、「Humaneness」。仁是《論語》倫理之核心概念，是故儒學往往被稱之為「仁學」。

《論語》中仁有廣義及狹義的用法。要言之，廣義的「仁」即是指道德之完善，是成其為人的目標，其義近於「virtue」。就此而言，其它的道德品質譬如孝、忠、信等，不過是仁的各種表現。

(3.3)「人而不仁，如禮何？人而不仁，如樂何？」

狹義的「仁」即是仁慈、關愛他人。

(12.22)「樊遲問仁。子曰：「愛人」。

(1) 仁之根源

廣博的仁德自何而來，又從何做起？孔子將其根源訴諸於最自然的人類情感，即血親之情。所以「孝」（對父母之愛）及「悌」（對兄弟之愛）成為儒家倫理中的最基本德性。

(1.2) 其為人也孝弟，而好犯上者，鮮矣；不好犯上，而好作亂者，未之有也。君子務本，本立而道生。孝弟也者，其為仁之本與！

(1.6) 弟子入則孝，出則悌，謹而信，泛愛眾而親仁。」

With these consanguine sentiments in hand, then by the principles of sympathy and reciprocity, Ren can be extended from the narrow domain (one's family) to the broad one (the community) – you love your family members, and you sympathize others' love of their families; therefore you ought not to wish anything evil to others since you do not wish anything evil to your own family members.

有了孝悌之心，再依據忠恕之行為準則，[6] 將心比心，推己及人。

(15.24) Zi Gong asked, saying, "Is there one word which may serve as a rule of practice for all one's life?" The Master said, "Is not RECIPROCITY such a word? What you do not want done to yourself, do not do to others."

(15.24) 子貢問曰：「有一言而可以終身行之者乎？」子曰：「其恕乎！己所不欲，勿施於人。」

(6.30) Now the man of perfect virtue, wishing to be established himself, seeks also to establish others; wishing to be enlarged himself, he seeks also to enlarge others. To be able to judge of others by what is nigh in ourselves - this may be called the art of virtue.

(6.30) 夫仁者，己欲立而立人，己欲達而達人。能近取譬，可謂仁之方也已。

The result, as Confucius wishes, will be a harmonious world, full of love and care, where everybody can be deemed as your family member!

藉此，對父母兄弟的偏愛則發展為對眾人之兼愛，天下大同之境庶乎可期。

(12.5) Let the superior man never fail reverentially to order his own conduct, and let him be respectful to others and observant of propriety - then all within the four seas will be his brothers. What has the superior man to do with being distressed because he has no brothers?

(12.5) 四海之內，皆兄弟也。君子何患乎無兄弟也。

(2) Performance of Ren

(2) 仁之表現

Humane and benevolent virtues are internal qualities; equally important, however, a gentleman should practice explicitly it in daily life, expressing his benevolence to others by sticking to formal rules (ceremony, ritual, and behavioral propriety) stipulated by community traditions. These various forms of behavioral propriety is called "Li".

心中有仁愛，又如何表達出來呢？答案乃是禮。禮（ceremony, ritual, propriety），人群社會相交相處所共遵以體現內心情意的行為方式。

In other words, Confucius does not take virtues as something isolated within the mental world. Virtues are performative: that you are a virtuous man is manifested largely by your proper manner in daily life.

仁藉由禮來實現，對人的尊重與關愛，必須通過他人所能理解和接受的方式來表現，故於此必須言「禮」。禮使得心中的情意得以恰當地表達。

(12.1) Yan Yuan asked about perfect virtue. The Master said, "To subdue one's self and return to propriety, is perfect virtue. If a man can for one day subdue himself and return to propriety, all under heaven will ascribe perfect virtue to him. Is the practice of perfect virtue from a man himself, or is it from others?"

(12.1) 顏淵問仁。子曰：「克己復禮為仁。一日克己復禮，天下歸仁焉。為仁由己，而由人乎哉？」顏淵曰：「請問其目。」子曰：「非禮勿視，非禮勿聽，非禮勿言，非禮勿動。」顏淵曰：「回雖不敏，請事斯語矣。」

[6] 「恕」者，「如心」也。「恕」的本義即是將心比心，站在他人之立場理解事情：我不願我的父母兄弟不好，是以我亦不應使得他人的父母兄弟不好。

Yan Yuan said, "I beg to ask the steps of that process." The Master replied, "Look not at what is contrary to propriety; listen not to what is contrary to propriety; speak not what is contrary to propriety; make no movement which is contrary to propriety." Yan Yuan then said, "Though I am deficient in intelligence and vigor, I will make it my business to practice this lesson.

E. Panowsky (1940):

Nine days before his death Immanuel Kant was visited by his physician. Old, ill, and nearly blind, he rose from his chair and stood trembling and muttering unintelligible words. Finally his faithful companion realized that he would not sit down until the visitor had taken a seat. This he did, and Kant then permitted himself to be helped to his chair, and after he had regained some of his strength, said 'Das Gefühl für Humanität hat mich noch nicht verlassen' — 'The sense of Humanity has not yet left me.' The two men were moved almost to tears. For though the word Humanität had come, in the eighteenth century, to mean little more than politeness and civility, it had, for Kant, a much deeper significance, which the circumstances of the moment served to emphasize: man's proud and tragic consciousness of self-imposed principles, contrasting with his utter subjugation to illness, decay, and all that is implied in the word 'mortality.'

Needless to say, psychologically, in practice all those proper manners, a noble gentleman should be sincere and fully-hearted, instead of taking a formalist attitude.

（3.4）Lin Fang asked what was the first thing to be attended to in ceremonies. The Master said, "A great question indeed! In festive ceremonies, it is better to be sparing than extravagant. In the ceremonies of mourning, it is better that there be deep sorrow than a minute attention to observances."

The weight between Li and Ren has been a controversial issue in Confucian scholarship for long. Is our formal propriety in behavior constructive to our virtue, or merely instrumental? It is up to the reader to dwell on it.

D ETHICAL PARADOXES

(1) The Heinz Dilemma in Confucianism

Ren, the disposition to love all people, is based on Xiao, the disposition to love one's closed people. What if your universal love is in confliction with your partial love?

孔子談仁與禮，乃是討論一個普遍的人倫問題，不應偏隘地將其理解為中國文化特有的傳統。現代德國藝術史大家 Panowsky 所講述的康德故事（見左列引文），可視作仁禮一致的好例證。

在仪式性的背后挖掘出精神性的情感表达

禮的要旨即在於心中的敬重與關愛，而非徒具形式。

（3.4）:「林放問禮之本。子曰：『大哉問！禮，與其奢也，寧儉；喪，與其易也，寧戚。』」

仁、禮之間孰輕孰重，歷來學者聚訟不斷。有仁而無禮，失諸粗野；有禮而無仁，失諸僵化。如何掌握兩者之間的分寸，是一個值得思索的課題。

"质胜文则野，文胜质则史。文质彬彬，然后君子。"

丁 倫理悖論

(1) 親親互隱

仁的基礎是孝，是親情之愛，然則，如若偏愛親人與汎愛眾人相衝突，又當如何處理？換言之，如若對父母之仁（孝）與對他人之仁矛盾，做到一種仁，豈不是就是另一意義上的不仁？是為仁之悖論。

(13.18) The Duke of She informed Confucius, saying, "Among us here there are those who may be styled upright in their conduct. If their father have stolen a sheep, they will bear witness to the fact." Confucius said, "Among us, in our part of the country, those who are upright are different from this. The father conceals the misconduct of the son, and the son conceals the misconduct of the father. Uprightness is to be found in this."

Mencius*, ("Jinxin I", 35)

Tao Ying asked, saying, 'Shun being sovereign, and Gao Yao chief minister of justice, if Gu Sou had murdered a man, what would have been done in the case?'

Mencius said, 'Gao Yao would simply have apprehended him.'

'But would not Shun have forbidden such a thing?'

'Indeed, how could Shun have forbidden it? Gao Yao had received the law from a proper source.'

'In that case what would Shun have done?'

'Shun would have regarded abandoning the kingdom as throwing away a worn-out sandal. He would privately have taken his father on his back, and retired into concealment, living somewhere along the sea-coast. There he would have been all his life, cheerful and happy, forgetting the kingdom.'

Plato: "Euthyphro"

Euthyphro: I am amused, Socrates, at your making a distinction between one who is a relation and one who is not a relation; for surely the pollution is the same in either case, if you knowingly associate with the murderer when you ought to clear yourself and him by proceeding against him. The real question is whether the murdered man has been justly slain. If justly, then your duty is to let the matter alone; but if unjustly, then even if the murderer lives under the same roof with you and eats at the same table, proceed against him. Now the man who is dead was a poor dependent of mine who worked for us as a field labourer on our farm in Naxos, and one day in a fit of drunken passion he got into a quarrel with one of our domestic servants and slew him. My father bound him hand and foot and threw him into a ditch, and then sent to Athens to ask of a diviner what he should do with him. Meanwhile he never attended to him and took no care about him, for he regarded him as a murderer; and thought that no great harm would be done even if he did die. Now this was just what happened. For such was the effect of cold and hunger and chains upon him, that before the messenger returned from the diviner, he was dead. And my father and family are angry with me for taking the part of the murderer and prosecuting my father. They say that he did not kill him, and that if he did, dead man was but a murderer, and I ought not to take any notice, for that a son is impious who prosecutes a father. Which shows, Socrates, how little they know what the gods think about piety and impiety.

（2）Formal Propriety can Kill (Skipped)

(13.18) 葉公語孔子曰：「吾黨有直躬者，其父攘羊，而子證之。」孔子曰：「吾黨之直者異於是。父為子隱，子為父隱，直在其中矣。」

《孟子.盡心上》

桃應問曰：「舜為天子，皋陶為士，瞽瞍殺人，則如之何？」

孟子曰：「執之而已矣。」

「然則舜不禁與？」

曰：「夫舜惡得而禁之？夫有所受之也。」

「然則舜如之何？」

曰：「舜視棄天下，猶棄敝蹝也。竊負而逃，遵海濱而處，終身訢然，樂而忘天下。」

柏拉圖《遊敘弗倫》篇記錄一番蘇格拉底與遊敘弗倫的對話（見左列引文），後者不顧家人憤恨，舉報其父虐死家奴之惡行。

Tutorial Questions

1. Li* (禮, Ritual) and Ren（仁, Humaneness） As is presented in the Analects, Confucius takes Li and Ren as the most important virtues in the making of a Gentleman. What is the relation between Li and Ren? Do you think Li is instrumental to Ren, or something constructive by itself? Find evidence in the text for your understanding.

2. Ren*（仁. Humaneness） and Xiao* (孝, Filial Devotion) Another key notion is Xiao, which Confucius takes as the basis of Ren in general. Can you construct an argument for Confucius for the importance of Xiao in the making of the Gentleman?

3. Xue (學, Learning) The "A" Section of Chapter 5 in our text deals with pursuit of Xue or knowledge. What kind of knowledge do your think Confucius primarily has in mind when he talks about it, and what kind of knowledge he does not care so much as us?

4. Confucius attach much importance to Li and social ceremonies, in particular the importance of ceremony for the dead and ancestors. But the Mohists think this is paradoxical and ridiculous.

> 公孟子曰:「無鬼神。」又曰:「君子必學祭祀。」子墨子曰:「執無鬼而學祭禮，是猶無客而學客禮也，是猶無魚而為魚罟也。」(《墨子·公孟》)
> The Confucians say that there is no ghost, but at the same time they say that one should learn to show ceremonious homage toward the ancestors. This is as ridiculous as making fishing nets while one knows that there is no fish in the water at all!

Do you agree with Mozi? And can we get some charitable defense for Confucius, if not Confucianism in general?

2) Big Problems

1. Paradox of Ren（仁, Humaneness）and Xiao (孝, Filial Devotion):

[13:08] 葉公語孔子曰：「吾黨有直躬者，其父攘羊，而子證之。」孔子曰：「吾黨之直者異於是。父為子隱，子為父隱，直在其中矣。」
The Duke of She informed Confucius, saying, "Among us here there are those who may be styled upright in their conduct. If their father have stolen a sheep, they will bear witness to the fact." Confucius said, "Among us, in our part of the country, those who are upright are different from this. The father conceals the misconduct of the son, and the son conceals the misconduct of the father. Mencius said, “Gao Yao would simply have apprehended him.”

以偏概全

灵活考虑

“But would not Shun have forbidden such a thing?''
“Indeed, how could Shun have forbidden it? Gao Yao had received the law from a proper source.”
”In that case what would Shun have done?“
“Shun would have regarded abandoning the kingdom as throwing away a worn-out sandal. He would privately have taken his father on his back, and retired into concealment, living some where along the sea-coast. There he would have been all his life, cheerful and happy, forgetting the kingdom.”

《墨子. 兼愛》： 盜愛其室，不愛其異室，故竊異室以利其室。 賊愛其身，不愛人，故賊人以利其身。
As he loves only his own family and not other families, the thief steals from other families to profit his own family. As he loves only his own person and not others, the robber does violence to others to profit himself.
《孟子.滕文公》：墨氏兼愛，是無父也。無父無君，是禽獸也。
Mo's principle is "to love all equally," which does not acknowledge the peculiar affection due to a father. But to acknowledge neither king nor father is to be in the state of a beast.

2. Paradox of Ren（仁, Humaneness）and Li (礼, Ritual):

[17:21]宰我問：「三年之喪，期已久矣。君子三年不為禮，禮必壞；三年不為樂，樂必崩。舊穀既沒，新穀既升，鑽燧改火，期可已矣。」子曰：「食夫稻，衣夫錦，於女安乎？」曰：「安。」「女安則為之！夫君子之居喪，食旨不甘，聞樂不樂，居處不安，故不為也。今女安，則為之！」宰我出。子曰：「予之不仁也！子生三年，然後免於父母之懷。夫三年之喪，天下之通喪也。予也，有三年之愛於其父母乎？」
Zai Wo asked about the three years' mourning for parents, saying that one year was long enough. "If the superior man abstains for three years from the observances of propriety, those observances will be quite lost. If for three years he abstains from music, music will be ruined. Within a year the old grain is exhausted, and the new grain has sprung up, and, in procuring fire by friction, we go through all the changes of wood for that purpose. After a complete year, the mourning may stop." The Master said, "If you were, after a year, to eat good rice, and wear embroidered clothes, would you feel at ease?" "I should," replied Wo. The Master said, "If you can feel at ease, do it. But a superior man, during the whole period of mourning, does not enjoy pleasant food which he may eat, nor derive pleasure from music which he may hear. He also does not feel at ease, if he is comfortably lodged. Therefore he does not do what you propose. But now you feel at ease and may do it." Zai Wo then went out, and the Master said, "This shows Yu's want of virtue. It is not till a child is three years old that it is allowed to leave the arms of its parents. And the three years' mourning is universally observed throughout the empire. Did Yu enjoy the three years' love of his parents?"

3: Paradox of Immortality and superbe (鬼神悖论)

Confucius attach much importance to Li and social ceremonies, in particular the importance of ceremony for the dead and ancestors. But the Mohists think this is paradoxical and ridiculous. Do you think that Mozi is charitable on that?
(《墨子·公孟》) 公孟子曰：「無鬼神。」又曰：「君子必學祭祀。」子墨 子曰：「執無鬼而學祭禮，是猶無客而學客禮也，是猶無魚而為魚罟也。」

ZHUANGZI: NATURALNESS & FREEDOM

GFH1000 In Dialogue with Humanity
Deng Yangzhou | dengyangzhou@cuhk.edu.cn

A: DAOISM AND ZHUANGZI

Chad Hansen（2007）: "Traditionally traced to the mythical Laozi "Old Philosopher," Philosophical Daoism owes more to "philosopher Zhuang" (Zhuangzi) (4th Century BCE). Daoism is an umbrella that covers a range of similarly motivated doctrines. The term "Daoism" is also associated with assorted naturalistic or mystical religions. Sometimes the term "Lao-Zhuang Philosophy" is used to distinguish the philosophical from the more religious "Huang-Lao" (Yellow Emperor-Laozi) strain of Daoist thought."

"Dao" literally means "Path", and metaphorically means "Way", "Guide". In Chinese culture, it conventionally refers to the guiding principle of human life. In this sense, it is broadly used by almost all ethical and philosophical schools in ancient China, not exclusively by "Daoism". [1]

According to historical records, there were 52 pieces in Zhuangzi, the book traditionally ascribed to the philosopher Zhuangzi. Extant today there are 33 pieces, of which the 7 pieces in the "Internal Chapters" are believed by most modern scholars as the authentic writings by Zhuangzi.

Selections in the textbook of the present course significantly highlight "Free and Easy Wandering" and "Discussion on Making All Things Equal". While the former is more literary and the latter more argumentative in style, the central themes are consistent.

B: ZHUANGZI'S BIG IDEAS: A PRIMER

All philosophers reflect over and question the nature of Way (guiding principles) in human life. Confucius, for example, takes moral sentiment (benevolence) as the proper Way of a virtuous life, and for

甲 道家與《莊子》

「道家」，可指老莊哲學，乃屬一智性思辨，亦可指黃老之術，乃是一宗教文化（亦包含部份樸素的科學探索）。本課從前者角度解讀《莊子》。

神秘化
文学化

「道」，本義為「道路」,引申為「方向」、「準則」。[2] 這個「道」的概念，並非道家所獨有，諸子百家都以論道尋道為己任，甚至後世之漢傳佛家經注中亦常言「道」。[3]

[1] It is interesting to ask why it is Daoism that earns "Dao" as the name of its school. Anticlimactically, however, this may well have been a historical incidence—one of the pioneering thinker of Daoism, Laozi, was obsessed of talking about "Dao" in his writing, and just like Plato had onthologized eidos into some mysterious entity, Laozi also characterized Dao as some transcendent and mysterious agent behind the world.

[2] 《說文解字》:「一達謂之道」。Chad Hansen 將哲學意義上的的「道」譯作「Way,Guide」。

[3] 如《論語》（4.8）:「朝聞道，夕死可矣。」（4.9）:「士志於道，而恥惡衣惡食者，未足與議也。」《金剛經》第八品:「我得阿羅漢道」。凡此種種，不勝枚舉。至於唯獨老莊學派得以稱「道家」，大抵是一歷史習慣——老子在《道德經》中喜談「道」的本質，將其本體化、神秘化，後世門徒遂以「道家」自居。

Aristotle, the proper Way is eudemonia based on rationality. What does Zhuangzi have in mind?

Zhuangzi is a skeptic, or more precisely a sophisticated and high-order skeptic. He doubts whether there is any constant, articulable, clear-cut, and universally applicable Way in human life.

First-order Reflection (Confucius etc.): What kind of proper Way should one follow in making a good life?
Second-order Reflection (Zhuangzi): Is there any proper Way as such at all?

This skepticism in his system naturally results into a Relativism of life values: ultimately, in human life, there is no absolute and universally valid principle or criterion, and any articulable life principle, if applicable at all, is relativized into a specific context. With no exception, all life principles are relative, constrained to limited domains of application.

This being said, then how should one lead a proper life? Zhuangzi's answer is a kind of "Naturalistic" life attitude: do not blindly follow any general life principle deeply rooted in your habitual opinions; do not "contrive" any principle or rely on any borrowed principle, and try to "forget" about all of such principles if any; carefully cultivate your own natural disposition, and be ready to follow any external principle in a proper context, but do not stick to any of them as the sole and intrinsic tenet of your life.

Zhuangzi, "The Great Teacher":
"When the springs dry up and the fish are left stranded on the ground, they spew one another with moisture and wet one another down with spit—but it would be much better if they could forget one another in the rivers and lakes."
"So it is said, the fish forget one another in the rivers and lakes, and men forget one another in the arts of the Way."

In short, the Way Zhuangzi advocates is a Way of no Way (no specific way), a Natural Way based on the playing art of Any Way.

據《漢書．藝文志》,《莊子》有 52 篇。今本《莊子》卻只有 33 篇,為晉代郭象注本所刪定,其中分〈內篇〉7 篇、〈外篇〉15 篇、〈雜篇〉11 篇。後人大致認為〈內篇〉乃莊子手筆,〈外篇〉及〈雜篇〉則為後學所作。

〈內篇〉7 篇依次為〈逍遙遊〉、〈齊物論〉、〈養生主〉、〈人間世〉、〈德充符〉、〈大宗師〉、〈應帝王〉。

本科教材選文,以〈逍遙遊〉與〈齊物論〉為主體。兩篇文章,行文風格不同(前者多寓言,後者多論理),但宗旨連貫,是莊子哲學著作之核心篇章。[4]

乙 莊學要義

百家爭鳴，各論其道。孔子以仁愛為正道，墨子以兼愛為正道，諸子百家有諸子百道，那莊子倡導什麼道？

然而莊子是一位懷疑論者，而且理論上他是一位高階思維（high-order）的懷疑論者，他懷疑人生是否有所謂放之四海而皆準、能清楚界定的「正道」或「常道」。[5]

第一階(first-order）的問題（儒墨）：依照什麼「道」

[4] 外篇中〈秋水〉一篇，意旨與此兩篇呼應，且文辭優雅流暢，頗可一讀。

[5] Philosophically speaking, Confucius and Mozi's questions are ethical (倫理), while Zhuangzi' question is in essence meta-ethical (元倫理或後設倫理). Chad Hansen: "The meta-ethical reflections (of Daoism) were by turns skeptical then relativist, here naturalist and there mystical."(Italic mine).

而生活？
第二階(high-order)的問題（莊子）：人生究竟有無「正道」？

C: RELATIVISM

In his polemic essay, "Discussion on Making All Things Equal", Zhuangzi laments that, more often than not, people are enslaved by this and that kind of deeply rooted clichés ("the mind given to him") in orientating their lives, and cannot liberate their minds easily, because they are not willing to see things from novel perspectives, to jump from "this" standpoint to "that" one.

"If a man follows the mind given him and makes it his teacher, then who can be without a teacher? Why must you comprehend the process of change and form your mind on that basis before you can have a teacher? Even an idiot has his teacher."

"Everything has its "that," everything has its "this." From the point of view of "that," you cannot see it; but through understanding, you can know it. So I say, "that" comes out of "this," and "this" depends on "that"—which is to say that "this" and "that" give birth to each other."

As such, people tend to stereotype their existing values and tenets, being hostile to principles and lifestyles of others, contenting themselves with their own local achievements, partial knowledge, and superficial fames.

"When the Way relies on little accomplishments and words rely on vain show, then we have the rights and wrongs of the Confucians and the Mohists. What one calls right, the other calls wrong; what one calls wrong, the other calls right."

In the other and more poetic essay, "Free and Easy Wandering", with a very sarcastic tone, Zhuangzi enumerates a host of counter-examples of this opinionated type, and further indicates that such a life attitude is impeditive to one's fulfillment of his natural talent, since, being engaged into external and popular principles of life, one would fail to attend to his own, unique, and natural potential.

Indeed, if one transcends from his parochial mindset, and develops a flexible and cosmopolitan world view, he would realize the stark truth that human life follows no Ways specific. This is true not only for factual achievement, but also for any significant value in regard to our cognition, morality, and even aesthetics.

由懷疑，莊子步入 價值的相對論（Relativism）：人之生活，歸根結底，並無任何絕對的行事原則或價值標準可依循；一切可界定的、可言說的原則和道理，都不過是相對的。天下之道，其實「道通為一」。

由相對論，莊子思想歸宿到 生活的「自然」論（Naturalism）[6]：既然人生無準則無正道，洞觀生活真諦的「達人」，乃應「坐忘」一切人為規則之禁錮，無所「待」，不刻意「為」之，無可無不可(「兩行」)，從而做到順應「天然」，返璞歸真。如此，方能物盡其性，人盡其才，且求得內心「逍遙」自在。

〈大宗師〉「泉涸，魚相與處於陸，相呴以溼，相濡以沫，不如相忘於江湖。」

〈大宗師〉「魚相造乎水，人相造乎道。相造乎水者，穿池而養給；相造乎道者，無事而生定。故曰：魚相忘乎江湖，人相忘乎道術。」

[6] 「自然」或「天然」：本來的樣子，庄子亦多喜用「天鈞」、「天倪」、「天理」等詞。

Taste is Relative:

"Discussion on Making All Things Equal":

"Maoqiang and Lady Li were beautiful; but if fish saw them, they would dive to the bottom of the stream; if birds saw them, they would fl y away; and if deer saw them, they would break into a run."

"Whether you point to a little stalk or a great pillar, a leper or the beautiful Xishi, things ribald and shady, or things grotesque and strange, the Way makes them all into one."

D: FREEDOM IN NATURAL STATE

In various contexts, with various metaphors and examples, Zhuangzi repeatedly describes the ideal life state based on a natural and healthy attitude. One metaphor he uses in "Discussion on Making All Things Equal" is that of a "hinge".

"When the hinge is fitted into the socket, it can respond endlessly. Its right, then, is a single endlessness, and its wrong, too, is a single endlessness."

Life experiences are infinite, and it is in vain for a finite person to cope with such an infinite life with but a single principle or way. A

所以，莊子的人生之「道」，一言以蔽之，是「不道之道」，[7] 是超越一切人為之道的「天然之道」。

丙　道通為一

在〈齊物論〉中，莊子指出，世人的生活價值觀，往往為「成心」所累，執著於一己之見，將器狹的生活原則絕對化，看不到其相對性，這乃是錯誤人生態度的根源。

〈齊物論〉「夫隨其成心而師之，誰獨且無師乎？奚必知代而心自取者有之？愚者與有焉。未成乎心而有是非，是今日適越而昔至也。」

成心是區分、辨別的能力。有成心者，即有彼此、是非。

執著成見，只知從自己的固定角度（「此」）看待萬事萬物，則必然囿於器狹的價值標準，以小成、小年、小知為榮，並以自己的標準衡量甚至批評他人的標準。

〈齊物論〉「物無非彼，物無非是。自彼則不見，自知

[7] 「不道之道」語出〈齊物論〉。

worldly person know better of this, and would treat himself as a role into the central chink of a hinge, so that he is not enslaved and impeded by any specific block, and thus is capable to deal with any situation freely and easily.

He is with nothing, but precisely because of this, he faces everything. He contrives nothing, but precisely because of this, he is potential to do all he is naturally capable.

In another fun story from "The Secret for Caring for Life", Zhuangzi trusts a cook to state out his ideal of free life:

Cook Ding on Cutting the Ox

Cook Ding was cutting up an ox for Lord Wenhui. At every touch of his hand, every heave of his shoulder, every move of his feet, every thrust of his knee—zip! zoop! He slithered the knife along with a zing, and all was in perfect rhythm, as though he were performing the dance of the Mulberry Grove or keeping time to the Jingshou music.

"Ah, this is marvelous!" said Lord Wenhui. "Imagine skill reaching such heights!"

Cook Ding laid down his knife and replied, "What I care about is the Way, which goes beyond skill. When I first began cutting up oxen, all I could see was the ox itself. After three years I no longer saw the whole ox. And now—now I go at it by spirit and don't look with my eyes. Perception and understanding have come to a stop, and spirit moves where it wants. I go along with the natural makeup, strike in the big hollows, guide the knife through the big openings, and follow things as they are. So I never touch the smallest ligament or tendon, much less a main joint.

"A good cook changes his knife once a year—because he cuts. A mediocre cook changes his knife once a month—because he hacks. I've had this knife of mine for nineteen years and I've cut up thousands of oxen with it, and yet the blade is as good as though it had just come from the grindstone. There are spaces between the joints, and the blade of the knife has really no thickness. If you insert what has no thickness into such spaces, then there's plenty of room—more than enough for the blade to play about in. That's why after nineteen years, the blade of my knife is still as good as when it fi rst came from the grindstone.

"However, whenever I come to a complicated place, I size up the difficulties, tell myself to watch out and be careful, keep my eyes on what I'm doing, work very slowly, and move the knife with the greatest subtlety, until—flop! the whole thing comes apart like a clod of earth crumbling to the ground. I stand there holding the knife and look all around me, completely satisfied and reluctant to move on, and then I wipe off the knife and put it away."

"Excellent!" said Lord Wenhui. "I have heard the words of Cook Ding and learned how to care for life!"

則知之。故曰：彼出於是，是亦因彼。」;
〈齊物論〉「是亦彼也，彼亦是也。彼亦一是非，此亦一是非。果且有彼是乎哉？果且無彼是乎哉？」
〈齊物論〉「道隱於小成，言隱於榮華。故有儒墨之是非，以是其所非而非其所是。」

〈逍遙遊〉則以寓言方式反復舉例(蜩與學鳩、宋榮子、列子、堯、肩吾、惠子、宋人等)，示意世人往往因持一己俗見，不知變通，因而妨礙事功的完成，更妨礙天性的釋放。

然而如果轉換角度 (不拘泥於「彼」或「彼」) 超越「有蓬之心」，以達觀的態度看待人生，則能看出 : 小到人事之成敗，大到生活的價值(真善美)，其實並沒有也並不需要恪守固定的規則和標準——說到底，標準與道路永遠是相對的。

真假（知識）之道，無非相對：

〈齊物論〉「物無非彼，物無非是。自彼則不見，自知則知之。故曰：彼出於是，是亦因彼。」
〈齊物論〉「大知閑閑，小知閒閒；大言炎炎，小言詹詹。」

「天下莫大於秋豪之末，而泰山為小。」

善惡（倫理）之道，也是相對：

〈齊物論〉:「大仁不仁，大廉不嗛，大勇不忮。道昭而不道，言辯而不及，仁常而不成，廉清而不信，勇忮而不成。」

〈大宗師〉:「故樂通物，非聖人也；有親，非仁也；天時，非賢也；利害不通，非君子也；行名失己，非士也；亡身不真，非役人也。」

〈胠篋〉: 故盜跖之徒問於跖曰 :「盜亦有道乎？」跖曰 :「何適而無有道邪？夫妄意室中之藏，聖也；入先，勇也；出後，義也；知可否，知也；分均，仁也。五者不備而能成大盜者，天下未之有也。」

美醜（品味）之道，還是相對：

〈齊物論〉:「厲與西施，恢恑憰怪，道通為一。」

「毛嬙、麗姬，人之所美也，魚見之深入，鳥見之高飛，麋鹿見之決驟。」

丁　逍遙自然

在其著作中，莊子多次描述超越人為的偏見，順乎自然，而達到的自由狀態。〈齊物論〉中他把這種自由處世的狀態稱為「道樞」和「兩行」。

道樞（得其環中）

「彼是莫得其偶，謂之道樞。樞始得其環中，以應無窮。」

莊子以環為喻，說出應事接物的道理。環是圓形的。每個圓形都有一個中心，而且圓形可以轉動，轉動時唯一位置不變者就是中心。
如果把握到環的中心（道樞），以軸心貫穿，那麼環就可以隨外在情況而轉動。同樣道理，如果把握到事情的中心，自然可以因應情況應事接物。

總而言之，超越了人為的偏見，順乎事物及自身的本性，人乃可以釋放天性，游刃有餘，「無

為」（不刻意為之）而「無不為」（充分做到可以做到的份量）。[8]

〈養生主〉中另外一則寓言，「庖丁解牛」，可謂是這種天性釋放自由人生的最佳註腳。

「庖丁解牛」

庖丁為文惠君解牛，手之所觸，肩之所倚，足之所履，膝之所踦，砉然嚮然，奏刀騞然，莫不中音。合於《桑林》之舞，乃中《經首》之會。

文惠君曰：「譆！善哉！技蓋至此乎？」

庖丁釋刀對曰：「臣之所好者道也，進乎技矣。始臣之解牛之時，所見无非牛者。三年之後，未嘗見全牛也。方今之時，臣以神遇，而不以目視，官知止而神欲行。依乎天理，批大郤，導大窾，因其固然。... 彼節者有間，而刀刃者无厚，以无厚入有間，恢恢乎其於遊刃必有餘地矣，是以十九年而刀刃若新發於硎。雖然，每至於族，吾見其難為，怵然為戒，視為止，行為遲。動刀甚微，謋然已解，如土委地。提刀而立，為之四顧，為之躊躇滿志，善刀而藏之。」

對於這一類的選擇，有的人說，年輕人應該如"大鵬展翅"（《逍遙遊》），不輕易退縮，所以激流勇退是有違"天性"的做法。
另一些人說，所謂順乎天性，就是跟隨自己的喜好，所以這類選擇其實和"曳尾于塗"（《秋水》）的烏龜一樣，是符合天性順其自然的。

喜好就符合"天性"吗？

Heart Sutra: EMPTINESS OF WORLD AND LIFE

GFH1000 In Dialogue with Humanity|Deng Yangzhou

A： The Text of Heart Sutra

Prajna-paramita Heart Sutra is a concise text from the school of Mahayana Buddhism, [1] which attempts to state the core ("heart") doctrine of the very school: how to transcend human sufferings in the secular world with perfection of wisdom.

Sanskrit "Prajna": wisdom, enlightenment
Sanskrit "Paramita": transcendence, perfection, arrival at the other shore

Presumably because of its conciseness and crispness, the Sutra had been widely spread and worshipped by believers. As a philosophical reflection, it also summarizes the gist of Mahayana wisdom, and had been deeply influential in eastern Asian intellectual history.

Buddhist classics were traditionally categorized in terms of "Tripiṭaka" (Sanskrit, meaning "Three Baskets"), including "sutra" (sermons from the Buddha), "Abhidharma" (interpretation of Buddhist doctrine), and " Vinaya" (Rules and regulations of monastic life). Historically, the Heart Sutra was not delivered by the Buddha (who had passed away 500 years ago), but it had been honored as a "Sutra", probably due to its enormous influence.

B: Earlier Buddhist Teachings

Traditional Buddhist cannons were based on the sermons from the Buddha (Sakyamuni) , which can be roughly summarized with the doctrines of "Four Noble Truths" and" Three Marks of Existence" (Dharma Seals).

《心經》：緣起性空，自在枯榮

GFH1000 與人文對話 | 鄧揚舟|

甲 《心經》其文

《般若波羅蜜多心經》旨在以極簡語句，講出大乘佛家思想 [3] 之核心智慧。大乘般若思想艱澀複雜，文卷浩瀚，所以有《心經》出，貴在簡潔。

「般若」: 梵文「Prajna」，智慧，啟蒙。
「波羅蜜多」: 梵文「Paramita」，到達彼岸，超越，度。
「心」: 核心，精粹。
「Prajna-paramita」，可意譯為「智度」，唯在佛經翻譯傳統中，這類核心概念以及咒語往往取其音譯。

身為佛經，心經歷代為佛徒頂禮膜拜，深信經文本身有奇妙法力。經中義理，也體現出關於人生的深刻反思，對中國文化實有深遠之智性影響。[4]

佛家典籍「三藏」:「經藏」記錄佛陀講義為主;「律藏」記錄僧眾戒律;「論藏」紀錄後學對佛教義理之分析申論。《心經》本非佛陀自身所述，唯因影響深遠，大乘教眾亦奉其為「經」。

[1] Mahayana (literally the "Great Vehicle") Buddhism, also called " Bodhisattvayana", is a Buddhist school emerged around the 1st century, which developed traditional Buddhist teaching into a direction to direct ("transport") all sentient beings into transcendent enlightenment. According to Mahayana, other Buddhist schools more or less focus on individual transcendence, and thus is properly called "Henayana" (the "Minor Vehicle").

[3] 「大乘」與「小乘」: 「乘」者，運載。佛滅後 500 年左右，大乘運動興起，試圖重新詮釋佛陀形象與佛教義理。大乘中人自稱「大乘」，而以前此的部派佛教為「小乘」。大乘自認為能運載眾生往解脫的彼岸(因其以普渡眾生為目標)，小乘則運載量有限(因其以自渡為目標)。大乘思想後傳入中國，藏傳及漢傳佛教的大部份宗派，均屬於大乘。而其它部派宗教，則當然不會承認自身是所謂「小乘」。

The Four Noble Truths

According to the tradition, the Buddha first taught the four noble truths in the very first teaching he gave after he attained enlightenment, as recorded in the The Discourse That Sets Turning the Wheel of Truth. Within this discourse, there are four key verses which present the four noble truths.

1 "Now this, bhikkhus, is the noble truth of suffering: birth is suffering, aging is suffering, illness is suffering, death is suffering; union with what is displeasing is suffering; separation from what is pleasing is suffering; not to get what one wants is suffering; in brief, the five aggregates subject to clinging are suffering."
2 "Now this, bhikkhus, is the noble truth of the origin of suffering: it is this craving which leads to re-becoming, accompanied by delight and lust, seeking delight here and there; that is, craving for sensual pleasures, craving for becoming, craving for disbecoming."
3"Now this, bhikkhus, is the noble truth of the cessation of suffering: it is the remainderless fading away and cessation of that same craving, the giving up and relinquishing of it, freedom from it, non-reliance on it.
4. "Now this, bhikkhus, is the noble truth of the way leading to the cessation of suffering: it is this noble eightfold path; that is, right view, right intention, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness, right concentration."

Three Marks of Existence

According to the Buddha, the three marks of existence are three characteristics shared by all phenomena or sentient beings[2] in the world, namely impermanence (anicca), suffering or un-satisfactoriness (dukkha), and non-self (anatta).

1. Impermanence It is a fact that all conditioned things (saṅkhara) are in a constant state of flux and changing. In reality there is no thing that ultimately ceases to exist or start to exist; only the appearance of a thing ceases as it changes from one form to another.
We believe to see "things" as well-cut objects, but these are illusions, illusions in the same way of camera images, which isolate static moments of ever changing flux. Imagine a leaf that falls to the ground and decomposes. While the appearance and relative existence of the leaf ceases, the components that formed the leaf become particulate material that may go on to form new plants.

乙：樸素佛家思想：「三法印」及「四聖諦」

早期佛教義理，以釋迦牟尼（Sakyamuni，元前 6-5 世紀）即佛祖（Buddha）的講道為基礎，可簡要總結為「四聖諦」及「三法印」。

四聖諦

所謂有關有情眾生的四個神聖真理，是佛陀最早的教誨。

苦諦 [5]：生而有苦。如生老病死、怨憎會、愛別離、求不得、五陰盛等憂愁惱苦；可比喻為身患頑疾。
集諦 [6]：集起諸苦的真理，即諸苦所以形成的原因，主要是「貪嗔癡」等人性之毒因；可比喻為生病的原因。
滅諦 [7]：涅槃的真理，指造成苦的原因是可以被滅盡的，人是可以離苦的；可比喻為疾病的痊癒。
道諦 [8]：達至涅槃境界的修行方法，即「八正道」[9]；可比喻為治病藥方。

「四聖諦」回應了四個根本的人生哲學問題：
1) 不理想的人生(現實的人生)是如何的？（苦諦）
2) 不理想的人生因何而有？（集諦）
3) 理想的人生是如何的？（滅諦）
4) 如何獲至理想的人生？（道諦）

[2] "Sentient beings" is a term used to designate the totality of living, conscious beings that constitute the object and audience of Buddhist teaching. It conventionally refers to the mass of living things subject to illusion, suffering, and rebirth.
[5]《增一阿含經》:「彼云何名為苦諦？所謂生苦、老苦、病苦、死苦，憂悲惱苦，愁憂苦痛不可稱記。怨憎會苦、恩愛別離苦、所欲不得苦，亦復是苦，取要言之，五盛陰苦，是謂苦諦。」
[6]《增一阿含經》:「云何苦習（集）諦？所謂受愛之分，習之不倦，意常貪著，是謂苦習諦。」
[7]《增一阿含經》:「彼云何苦盡（滅）諦？能使彼愛滅盡無餘，亦不更生，是謂苦盡諦。」
[8]《增一阿含經》:「彼云何為苦出要（道）諦？所謂聖賢八品道；所謂等見、等治、等語、等業、等命、等方便、等念、等定。」
[9]「正見」：正確的見解，即認識三法印、四聖諦；「正思維」：正確的思維；「正語」：合理的言談；「正業」：正確的行為；「正命」：正當的生活方式；「正精進」：專心修養提昇；「正念」：正確的念頭；「正定」：正身端坐，身心不亂。

There is no existence of leaves, nor dis-existence of leaves—this is the way Buddha teaches to see the world.

2. Suffering or Unsatisfactoriness (Dukkha) Nothing found in the physical world or even the psychological realm can bring lasting deep satisfaction. Dukkha is the stress, dissatisfaction and suffering that is experienced by all sentient beings who are not fully enlightened, since they stick to "things", toward them or against them, and thus suffer from being without them or with them.

3. Non-self Since every "thing" is but a snapshot of the ever changing flux, then no-thing can ever belong to a self, have a self in it, or otherwise be the self. For example, the "self" of human is analyzed by Buddha as being constituted by the "five heaps" (or "five aggregates"), namely form (matter), feelings, perceptions, impulses and consciousness, but these five heaps themselves are conditionally depending on other "things", and do not exist by them-selves.

C: The World View of Mahayana Buddhism

The world view of Mahayana Buddhism should be understood, not as a novel doctrine, but the expatiation and development of the core teaching of the Buddha mentioned above. Two central notions are "Dependent Origination" (Pratitya-samutpada) and "Emptiness" (sunyata).

Dependent Origination

Everything is interconnected. Everything affects everything else. Everything that is, is because other things are. No beings or phenomena exist independently of other beings and phenomena. All beings and phenomena are caused to exist by other beings and phenomena. Further, the beings and phenomena thus caused to exist cause other beings and phenomena to exist. Things and beings perpetually arise and perpetually cease because other things and beings perpetually arise and perpetually cease. All this arising and being and ceasing go on in one vast field or nexus of beingness. And there we are.

Emptiness

The Buddhist notion of Emptiness (Sunyata) is often misunderstood

三法印

所謂印證是否佛法的三項法門，亦是對世界萬事萬物或有情眾生（sentient beings）的三個特性的概括。

1. 「諸行無常」：行：泛指世間的現象。無常：遷變流動，而非恆常不易。
認為事物恆常不變者，就是執於定常。老病死之所以為苦，就是執於不老不病不死之時，並視之為定相。佛學認為，我們看到一一物件，其實都是假像，是我們像攝影機那樣把本來流動著、無常的真相加以靜止而執實出來的。世界的實相是流動著的事件，芸芸現象中不應看到一個獨立、不變、有自性的東西。

2.「諸法無我」[10]：法：泛指世間的事物。無我：沒有獨立自體的「我」，寓意事物實際上皆不可自主。
佛家分析所謂「自我」，不外由五蘊 (色、受、想、行、識) 和合而成（色：肉身；受：感受；想：想像；行：意念；識：認識）。
「我」的存在由「五蘊」這些條件成就；若沒有這些條件，則「我」亦無所謂存在。但「五蘊」的存在亦依於其他條件成就，否則亦不存在。由此推論，一切法都沒有自體自性，故曰「諸法無我」。

3. 「有漏皆苦」：漏：漏泄，是煩惱的別名。佛家認為人生的起點是「苦」。人生必有欲求，欲求不得滿足，就成為「苦」。因此苦不可免。
按照一般用法，「苦」與「樂」是相對的，屬於同等級序的概念。佛家否定這種說法，而認為「樂」只是「苦」的暫止或免除。

丙：大乘般若之世界觀：緣起性空

大乘佛家思想是對佛陀思想的發揮與繼承，並非新創的思想派別。其核心理論，一曰「緣

[10]詳細解釋可參考霍韜晦（2011：118-146）。

to mean that nothing exists. This is not so. Instead, it tells us that there is existence, but that phenomena are empty of "svabhava", a Sanskrit word that means self-nature, intrinsic nature, essence, or "own being."

Although we, the sentient beings, may not be conscious of it, we tend to think of things as having some essential nature that makes it what it is. So, we look at an assemblage of metal and plastic and call it a "chair." But "chair" is just an identity we project onto a phenomenon. There is no inherent "chair essence" inhabiting the metal and plastic.

In short, the notion of Emptiness in Mahayana theory emphasizes that we need to see the phenomenal world in a "middle way", namely, neither to see them as "beings", as unenlightened seculars minds do, nor as "non-beings", as nihilistic minds do. The world is empty of anything specific, because anything is always "be-coming".

D: The Life Attitude of Mahayana Buddhism

If, ultimately, everything in the world, you yourselves included, is but impermanent, empty, and depending on something else, then how should you treat the world and you yourself?

起」，一曰「性空」。

緣起論

緣起，即各種現象，均由條件而生起。[11]

佛家認為世間各種事物，都是因緣和合而成，此事的發生會牽引彼事發生。

「云何因緣法？謂此有故彼有。」(《雜阿含經》)
因：主要原因；緣：輔助條件；法：法則、道理。
事物依因待緣而生，亦依因待緣而滅。換句說話，事物都是有待於各種條件的決定而變動不居，並非可以獨立自存的。

性空論

性空，即指萬事萬物(「諸法」)均空無「自性」，空無內在的本性。事物由各種條件和合而生，因此事物沒有獨立自存的性質。換句說話，事物是緣起的，因此事物是性空的。

「有」、「無」與「空」
有(being)：具備自性的存在物。
無(nothingness)：「有」的否定，即是不存在。
空(becoming)：「空」既不是有，也不是無；空是不落兩邊、非有非無的。
簡單來說，一般人以為事物是「有」(being)，具備各樣恆常不易的性質，為增益見；虛無的人以為事物是「無」(nothingness)，終會歸於無有，為斷滅見。大乘佛學卻認為事身是性空的，而性空是說事物在不斷的流動變化之中(becoming)。

[11] 教材選文一行禪師用「互即互入」(interbeing）解大乘佛家的緣起論。

故此佛學並非認為事物不存在而為一大虛無；事物當然是存在的，只是它的存在乃無自性、因緣生。

丁：大乘佛家的人生觀：掃相去執

問題：既然萬事萬物均是空，那大乘佛家思想認為正確的人生態度會是如何呢？

The Heart Sutra 心經

Translated by George Boeree 漢譯 玄奘

"Perfection of Wisdom" is a translation of "Prajnaparamita". The full title of this sutra is "The Heart of Prajnaparamita Sutra".

Avalokiteshvara, the Bodhisattva of Compassion, meditating deeply on Perfection of Wisdom, saw clearly that the five aspects of human existence are empty, and so released himself from suffering. Answering the monk Sariputra, he said this:*

觀自在菩薩，行深般若波羅蜜多時，照見五蘊皆空，度一切苦厄。

Body is nothing more than emptiness, emptiness is nothing more than body. The body is exactly empty, and emptiness is exactly body.

舍利子，色不異空，空不異色；色即是空，空即是色。

The other four aspects of human existence -- feeling, thought, will, and consciousness -- are likewise nothing more than emptiness, and emptiness nothing more than they.

受、想、行、識，亦復如是。

All things are empty: Nothing is born, nothing dies, nothing is pure, nothing is stained, nothing increases and nothing decreases.

舍利子，是諸法空相：不生、不滅；不垢、不淨；不增、不減。

So, in emptiness, there is no body, no feeling, no thought, no will, no consciousness. There are no eyes, no ears, no nose, no tongue, no body, no mind. There is no seeing, no hearing, no smelling, no tasting, no touching, no imagining. There is nothing seen, nor heard, nor smelled, nor tasted, nor touched, nor imagined.

是故空中無色，無受、想、行、識；無眼、耳、鼻、舌、身、意；無色、聲、香、味、觸、法；無眼界，乃至無

意識界。

There is no ignorance, and no end to ignorance. There is no old age and death, and no end to old age and death. There is no suffering, no cause of suffering, no end to suffering, no path to follow. There is no attainment of wisdom, and no wisdom to attain.

無無明，亦無無明盡；乃至無老死，亦無老死盡。無苦集滅道；無智亦無得, 以無所得故。

The Bodhisattvas rely on the Perfection of Wisdom, and so with no delusions, they feel no fear, and have Nirvana here and now.

菩提薩埵，依般若波羅蜜多故，心無掛礙。無掛礙故，無有恐怖，遠離顛倒夢想，究竟涅盤。

All the Buddhas, past, present, and future, rely on the Perfection of Wisdom, and live in full enlightenment.

三世諸佛，依般若波羅蜜多故，得阿耨多羅三藐三菩提。

The Perfection of Wisdom is the greatest mantra. It is the clearest mantra, the highest mantra, the mantra that removes all suffering.

故知般若波羅蜜多，是大神咒，是大明咒，是無上咒，是無等等咒，能除一切苦，真實不虛。

This is truth that cannot be doubted. Say it so:

故說般若波羅蜜多咒，即說咒曰:

Gaté, gaté, paragaté, parasamgaté. Bodhi! Svaha!
(Which means...Gone, gone, gone over, gone fully over. Awakened! So be it!)

揭諦揭諦，波羅揭諦，波羅僧揭諦，菩提薩婆訶。

* “Emptiness” is the usual translation for the Buddhist term “Sunyata” (or Shunyata). It refers to the fact that no thing -- including human existence -- has ultimate substantiality, which in turn means that no thing is permanent and no thing is totally independent of everything else. In other words, everything in this world is interconnected and in constant flux. A deep appreciation of this idea of emptiness thus saves us from the suffering caused by our egos, our attachments, and our resistance to change and loss.

觀自在菩薩，行深般若波羅蜜多時，照見五蘊皆空，度一切苦厄。舍利子，色不異空，空不異色；色即是空，空即是色。受、想、行、識，亦復如是。舍利子，是諸法空相：不生、不滅；不垢、不淨；不增、不減。是故空中無色，無受、想、行、識；無眼、耳、鼻、舌、身、意；無色、聲、香、味、觸、法；無眼界，乃至無意識界。無無明，亦無無明盡；乃至無老死，亦無老死盡。無苦集滅道；無智亦無得。以無所得故。菩提薩埵，依般若波羅蜜多故，心無掛礙。無掛礙故，無有恐怖，遠離顛倒夢想，究竟涅盤。三世諸佛，依般若波羅蜜多故，得阿耨多羅三藐三菩提。故知般若波羅蜜多，是大神咒，是大明咒，是無上咒，是無等等咒，能除一切苦，真實不虛。故說般若波羅蜜多咒，即說咒曰：揭諦揭諦，波羅揭諦，波羅僧揭諦，菩提薩婆訶。

觀自在菩薩：具備般若智慧、已得自在的菩薩（覺悟者）

行深般若波羅蜜多時：正在進行極深的禪觀活動

五蘊皆空：色、受、想、行、識都是無自性的

度一切苦厄：(這樣體驗生命現象，)可以超渡生命中的一切苦困

舍利子：即舍利之子，亦為佛弟子。此句喻意佛陀親自向舍利子說話。

色不異空，空不異色；色即是空，空即是色：「色」意指是物質現象；「空」則意指空無自性的緣起法；「不異」，意思是說「不離於」，亦即是說物質現象不能離開空無自性的緣起法來理解；「即是」，有「相等」、「同一」的意思，意即物質現象必然是空無自性的。

諸法空相：一切物質現象的存在都是空無自性的

不生、不滅；不垢、不淨；不增、不減：《心經》透過否定生滅、垢淨、增減三對概念，說明「諸法空相」的意思。現象界中沒有一個獨立自體物叫作「生」，若然執實「生」而為體，以為事物必然趨向於生，就是執於定常。事物不必然為生，也不必然為滅，反之亦然，因此亦無所謂「滅」的自體。其餘的垢、淨、增、減亦復如是。總言之，事物空無自性，沒有必然如此這般的道理。

無眼、耳、鼻、舌、身、意：佛家稱此六者為「六根」。由眼至身是感官，「意」是意識主體。一般而言，自我認為自己把握到事物的實相，就是以為六根所把握者即是實在。佛家卻認為六根本身亦是緣起無自性的，如果人的六根不是如此這般，則所把握的事物亦有所變動。(例如，跟一個天生盲眼的人解說紅色是毫無意義的)

無色、聲、香、味、觸、法：六根所攝取者，佛家稱之為「六境」。既然六根本身是緣起的，那麼六根所把握的六境當然也是緣起無自性的。以為所見所聽所嗅所嚐所觸所想具體必然如此的實在性，就是幻相。

無眼界，乃至無意識界：「界」是界域，代表事物存在的分類。無論是眼睛所及的界域，乃至意識所想的界域，同樣是緣起無自性的，不足言「有」。

無無明，亦無無明盡；乃至無老死，亦無老死盡：否定流轉的「十二因緣」。十二因緣是無明、行、識、名色、六入、觸、受、愛、取、有、生、老死。

無苦集滅道：言四諦畢竟也是空無自性的

無智亦無得。以無所得故。：「智」是認知主體，「得」是認知對象。意思是說沒有獨立自存的認知主體，也沒有獨立自存的認知對象。為甚麼？因為「空」不是說有一個實存的對象(例如「上帝」)，並且由這個對象創生萬物：「空」反而是說世界上沒有這個實存的對象，事物之生滅純然是依因待緣，在背後沒有甚麼神秘的主宰。既然背後沒有所謂的對象主宰一切，故云「無所得」。

菩提薩埵，依般若波羅蜜多故，心無掛礙：修行者依循這種般若觀空的智慧，內心再無煩惱與知障。

遠離顛倒夢想：「顛倒」意指不正當、不如實的理解，亦即執於定常的理解。

究竟涅盤：「涅盤」本來意指熄滅，後來佛學用來喻意斷絕一切煩惱，生命不再受到束縛。

三世諸佛：三世，即是過去、現在、未來。

阿耨多羅三藐三菩提：梵文音譯，漢譯是「無上正等正覺」，意即「至高無上、正確無誤、無所不知」的智慧。

是大神咒，是大明咒，是無上咒，是無等等咒：古印度相信語言有神秘力量，由此發展而為咒語傳統。「大神咒」指偉大的咒語；「大明咒」指有大智慧的咒語；「無上咒」指至高無上的咒語；「無等等咒」指超越一切、無與倫比的咒語。

揭諦揭諦，波羅揭諦，波羅僧揭諦：咒語素來不作解釋，重點不在意義，而在誦習。佛門中人解釋，不作翻譯是為了迎合鈍根眾生的神秘傳統。[12] 現在姑且略解如下：「揭諦」是「去」的意思；「波羅」是「到彼岸」的意思；「僧」是「大家一起」的意思；「菩提」是「覺悟」的意思；「薩婆訶」是「疾速成就」的意思；合而言之，整句說話就是「去吧去吧！去到彼岸吧！大家一起去彼岸吧！願覺悟可以疾速成就！」

[12] 「此為鈍根人巧說般若。愚癡眾生，聽聞般若，每不易信受，反生毀謗。……人們的思想是散亂的，而般若智慧是要從靜定中長養起來，此密咒不加以任何解說，一心持誦，即能使精神集中而達心專一境的定境，也可為引發智慧的方便。」(印順，1971：210-211)

B) Discussion & Debate

Karma 因果/孽/业/缘

1） 一行說必須有善，才有惡，也不可能只有惡，而沒有善。善惡是相互襯托的麼？善惡是相對的麼？妓女和搶匪是善的麼？

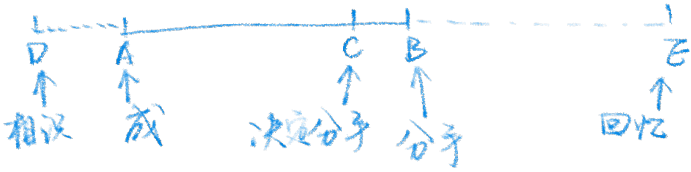

2）佛家的思想，在看到萬物皆空之後，結論是人應該不"執著"，無"執念"。這樣的人生哲學對我們的生活有什麼啟發意義？難道我學習就不執著於 GPA 了？難道我就不追求愛情了？

文學與性空緣起

三生石 （蘇東坡. 《僧圓澤傳》）

洛師惠林寺，故光祿卿李憕居第。祿山陷東都，憕以居守死之。子源，少時以貴遊子豪侈善歌，聞於時。及憕死，悲憤自誓，不仕不娶不食肉，居寺中五十餘年。

寺有僧圓澤，富而知音，源與之遊，甚密，促膝交語竟日，人莫能測。一日，相約遊蜀青城峨眉山。源欲自荊州溯峽，澤欲取長安斜谷路。源不可，曰：「吾已絕世事，豈可復道京師哉！」澤默然久之，曰：「行止固不由人。」

遂自荊州路，舟次南浦，見婦人錦襠負嬰而汲者，澤望而泣曰：「吾不欲由此者，為是也。」源驚問之。澤曰：「婦人姓王氏，吾當為之子。孕三歲矣，吾不來，故不得乳。今既見，無可逃者。公當以符咒助我速生。三日浴兒時，願公臨我，以笑為信。後十三年中秋月夜，杭州天竺寺外，當與公相見。」源悲悔而為具沐浴易服，至暮，澤亡而婦乳。三日，往視之，兒見源果笑。具以語王氏，出家財葬澤山下。源遂不果行，反寺中，問其徒，則既有治命矣。

後十三年自洛適吳，赴其約，至所約，聞葛洪川畔有牧童扣牛角而歌之。曰：「三生石上舊精魂，賞月吟風不要論。慚愧情人遠相訪，此身雖異性長存。」呼問：「澤公健否？」答曰：「李公真信士。然俗緣未盡，慎勿相近。惟勤修不墮，乃復相見。」又歌曰：「身前身後事茫茫，欲話因緣恐斷腸。吳越山川尋已遍，卻回煙棹上瞿塘。」遂去，不知所之。

後二年，李德裕奏源忠臣子，篤孝，拜諫議大夫，不就，竟死寺中，年八十。

寶黛緣 （曹雪芹, 《紅樓夢》）

那僧笑道：「此事說來好笑，竟是千古未聞的罕事。只因西方靈河岸上三生石畔，有絳珠草一株，時有赤瑕宮神瑛侍者，日以甘露灌溉，這絳珠草始得久延歲月。後來既受天地精華，复得雨露滋養，遂得脫卻草胎木質，得換人形，僅修成個女体，終日游於離恨天外，饑則食蜜青果為膳，渴則飲灌愁海水為湯。只因尚未酬報灌溉之德，故其五內便郁結著一段纏綿不盡之意。恰近日這神瑛侍者凡心偶熾，乘此昌明太平朝世，意欲下凡造歷幻緣，已在警幻仙子案前挂了號。警幻亦曾問及，灌溉之情未償，趁此倒可了結的。那絳珠仙子道：『他是甘露之惠，我并無此水可還。他既下世為人，我也去下世為人，但把我一生所有的眼淚還他，也償還得過他了。』因此一事，就勾出多少風流冤家來，陪他們去了結此案。」
